

BIPOC ★★★ TO THE ★★★ BALLOT BOX

MAYORAL RACE VOTER GUIDE

VOTE NOV. 4 | 7AM-8PM

BIPOC to the Ballot Box is a non-partisan, non-endorsing public education campaign launched by the ACLU of Massachusetts and partners to build voter awareness and engagement in municipalities with large or growing Black, Indigenous and People of Color (BIPOC) communities. Our goal is to provide Brockton voters access to the information they need to make an informed decision at the polls this November 4th.

All candidates for the 2025 general mayoral races in Brockton were asked the same questions and given equal opportunity to respond. Those who did not respond are marked as “no response.”

Jean Bradley Derenoncourt

Moises Rodrigues

Voter turnout has been low lately. How would you engage residents who feel that local leaders do not listen to them?

No response

To engage Brockton residents who feel unheard, we need to host accessible town halls and public forums that promote genuine two-way dialogue. They should also maintain consistent communication across multiple channels and demonstrate transparency by acting on citizen feedback.

How would you seek to improve public education in Brockton?

No response

I would strengthen public education in Brockton by investing in stable school funding, supporting teachers with resources and professional development, expanding after-school and ensuring safe, facilities. Partnering with organizations to foster equity, close gaps, and prepare students for success.

How would you address the issues facing the unhoused community in Brockton?

No response

I would address the needs in Brockton by expanding access to shelter, housing, and mental health services, while strengthening job training and outreach programs. Collaboration with nonprofits, faith groups, and local agencies will create long-term solutions that restore dignity and stability.

All candidates were given 300 characters to respond to the following questions.
